(re)searching voices

what? series of talks given by students & subsequent discussions

who? everyone who wishes to broaden their horizon

when? every wednesday evening from 6:00 to 7:30

where? conference room (2.015, second floor), Department of English, American and Celtic Studies (IAAK)

(re)searching voices is a lecture series which offers a platform for students and all those who are eager to deliver or listen to interesting talks in the fields of literary and cultural studies as well as linguistics. Talks can be given on any chosen topic - be it a paper or thesis you are currently working on or simply an issue you are really passionate about. After each talk we will have an open discussion during which questions can be answered and further impulses may be given. The central aim of (re)searching voices is to create a space in which an academic exchange and inspiring dialogue among students can thrive in a familiar environment and regardless of one's degree. Thus, we hope to lift the barriers between disciplines, establish new zones of contact and provide as well as gain fresh perspectives.

If you are interested in attending, either as a listener or a presenter, please feel free to send us an e-mail at researching.voices@uni-bonn.de so you can be added to our mailing list and will not miss out on any new information and developments.

Organisers: Marie Berndt, Marvin Reimann and Peri Sipahi
(re)searching voices: Call for Papers

If you wish to give a talk you can freely choose the topic of your presentation - be it a paper or thesis you are currently working on or simply an issue you are really passionate about. After your talk, which should last between 20 and 45 minutes, we will have an open discussion during which questions can be answered and further impulses may be given.

Please send us an e-mail at researching.voices@uni-bonn.de until 1 September 2019, including a preliminary title, a few sentences on your chosen topic as well as the estimated duration of your paper (either 20 or 45 minutes). We will then pick out the presenters for the winter term and get in touch with you to set a date for your presentation. Towards the beginning of October we will send out the fixed programme and schedule for the semester.

We look forward to hearing from you!

Organisers: Marie Berndt, Marvin Reimann and Peri Sipahi